Published narrative · Aesop, The Lion and the Mouse · exploratory extraction

SOURCE · complete evidence shown

- S1 A LION was awakened from sleep by a Mouse running over his face.
- S2 Rising up angrily, he caught him and was about to kill him, when the Mouse piteously entreated, saying: “If you would only spare my life, I would be sure to repay your kindness.”
- S3 The Lion laughed and let him go.
- S4 It happened shortly after this that the Lion was caught by some hunters, who bound him by strong ropes to the ground.
- S5 The Mouse, recognizing his roar, came and gnawed the rope with his teeth, and set him free, exclaiming:
- S6 “You ridiculed the idea of my ever being able to help you, not expecting to receive from me any repayment of your favour; now you know that it is possible for even a Mouse to confer benefits on a Lion.”

USER REQUEST · exact executed action question

Which physical running/waking, capture, binding, rope-gnawing and release relationships involve the Lion, Mouse, hunters and ropes? Exclude dialogue, intentions, laughter and the moral.

Before the request: actual query-blind extraction

S2-S3 detail: 5 of 12 records; full graph in the supplement.

Preserved limitation

S2 is a conditional plea to spare the Mouse. The generated 'spare' record loses that scope and misspells valid_until as 'valid until'. Capture and release are useful; the error is not removed.
