

Supplementary S1 · Failure and ambiguity

Published narrative · Arthur Conan Doyle, The Red-Headed League · original failures retained

SOURCE · complete evidence shown

- S1 I had called upon my friend, Mr. Sherlock Holmes, one day in the autumn of last year and found him in deep conversation with a very stout, florid-faced, elderly gentleman with fiery red hair.
- S2 With an apology for my intrusion, I was about to withdraw when Holmes pulled me abruptly into the room and closed the door behind me.
- S3 “You could not possibly have come at a better time, my dear Watson,” he said cordially.
- S4 “I was afraid that you were engaged.”
- S5 “So I am. Very much so.”
- S6 “Then I can wait in the next room.”
- S7 “Not at all. This gentleman, Mr. Wilson, has been my partner and helper in many of my most successful cases, and I have no doubt that he will be of the utmost use to me in yours also.”
- S8 The stout gentleman half rose from his chair and gave a bob of greeting, with a quick little questioning glance from his small fat-encircled eyes.

ACTION REQUEST · exact executed question

Which visit, conversation, pulling, door-closing, rising and greeting actions involve Watson, Holmes and the elderly gentleman? Exclude appearance and the content of dialogue.

CLAIMS REQUEST · exact executed question

What does the dialogue explicitly convey about being engaged, past partnership/help in cases and expected help in the present case? Keep each claim or concern attributed to its speaker. Exclude physical movements, appearance, offers to wait and politeness about the arrival time.

B · One actual claim (record 2 of 3); not a reconstructed failure

Reference reading and limitation · not model output

The frozen reading treats Mr. Wilson as the addressee and Watson as 'this gentleman'. Local vocative ambiguity remains unresolved. Independently, the generated past partnership has null holder/attitude instead of preserving Holmes's report.
